Eckla-Eagle Cardoor lens support.

Nature photographers often use their car as a hide; it is known that animals and birds have less fear for vehicles than for humans. But if you would like to photograph longer on a certain spot or if you especially travel in search for your location, it might be handy to have the disposal of more flexibility and stability. To find and follow your subject goes somewhat less supple with a bean-bag than with a tripod head. Profession Nature Photographer Han Bouwmeester has thought a long time about a solution for this situation. In cooperation with the developers of Eckla, the makers of among other things the Beach Roller Equipment trolley, a Cardoor lens support was developed on which you can place a tripod or a bean-bag.
